In Memoriam

Donald Wallace Himes, Jr.

May 8, 1953

February 4, 1966

"All the world's a stage,
And all the men and women merely players . . ."

The class of nineteen hundred and sixty-six presents a play, THE ELKER, the drama of a year of learning, laughter and love, produced here in print and pictures.

From the rise of the curtain on the comedy of freshmen to the final act for which the bows are now being taken, we, the seniors, have played our many parts. Our most important role is yet to be played. Our stage is large and our critics severe, but we face our audience with confidence and poise. Our names are up in lights and we are the stars.

A review of a play, The Elker; a farce in four acts.

Act I

The play opened with a flourish of excitement; the characters were unaccustomed to their roles and slightly awed by the glare of footlights and the mammoth theatre. They gradually gained stage presence and it became easy to see, as the play progressed, which actors would carry the play and which would hang in the wings.

The plot developed with hilarious burlesque, but a serious note was introduced in Scene II when a decision had to be made—the choice of which road to follow in their roles—College Prep or General. This crisis soon passed and Act I ended with the gaiety of dancing in a Parisian April.

Act II

Act two finds the actors displaying a feeling of assurance on stage. They have grown accustomed to their roles, have become freer with their actions and have begun to show more liberty and expression. The personalities of the more outstanding characters became more clearly defined. Highlights of Act II are the Ring Scene—very colorful with back, red and blue—and the musical World's Fair Scene, set in New York City.

Act III

The play's halfway mark had been reached. The actors had become a bit careless in their presentation. Excitement brightened this Act. Games were played and an important victory won—others were lost. Pranks were played and bombs were threatened. Like Act I, the scene ended with dancing in Southern Enchantment.

Act IV

The actors found themselves being tested frequently in Act IV; some passed, some failed. All were gay—many parties—many laughs. A new character entered the scene, bringing a touch of London, and added great enjoyment to the play's climax for everyone. The actors assumed the roles of salesmen, selling the audience themselves. The ending was glorious and gay. All actors had graduated from their amateur positions to those of professionals. They were a success.

Senior Class Will

Diane Anderson (on behalf of Room 101) wills Larry Blose to anyone who wants him.

Karl Anderson wills his ability to do nothing to everyone and his front seat in French class to anyone who dislikes French.

Kathy Anderson wills to Lynda Wilson and Terry Gregor all the fun she had in her senior year and on class picnics.

Nancy Anderson wills to Kurt Larson her locker in gym class, and all the fun she had in her senior year to all up-coming seniors.

Patty Anderson wills the busride from Brockport to Ridgway to anyone who can take it.

Rita Anderson wills Mrs. Busija for a homeroom teacher to any junior who thinks he knows how to get out of homeroom in the mornings.

Carol Armanini wills to Frances Cenni the good times she had at R.H.S. and her seat in the bus to anyone who has the misfortune of getting it.

Linda Assalone wills Mike Raspatello 5000 hot dogs, her seat in the guidance office to Denny DeAngelo, and Mr. Fleming's office back to Mr. Fleming.

Shirley Auman wills to Janet Thompson her ability to have a riot in her senior year and lots of luck with Pussy Foot.

Stanford Bauer wills his seat in Mrs. Busija's homeroom to the next senior.

Roy Bennett wills all his greasy clothes which he acquired in Prevocational to anyone who wants to look like a grease monkey the rest of his life.

Chris Berger wills the wonderful rides on the West End bus to Georgieann Gier, her problem-solving talent to Janie Imhof, and her promptness to anyone who wishes to be told to be ready half an hour early.

Fred Beyer wills a winter time parking place in front of John Zamerowski's house to anyone who wants trouble with the office.

Carol Bjorkquist wills to her sister Donna her ability to drive their big Olds and to Kathy Verostek a date with Fu Man Chu.

Larry Blose is not willing anything to anybody; he found a way to take it all with him.

Maureen Broderick wills Tom's "Kook" doll to Pam Trimble and to Frances Cenni her never-working nerve pills.

Phyllis Brown wills her seat in Senior English to Shirley Mitchell (if she thinks she wants it), and to Patty Marshall as much fun as possible at all the football games.

Judie Brush wills her seat in the auditorium to Linda and all her fun as a senior to Rosemary and Regina.

Jim Bullers wills one pencil with eraser to Larry Shreffler and to those of you he said he would remember. Hi!

Bob Burfield wills his seat in Physics class to anyone who doesn't like passing too many tests.

Rick Bussolletti wills an old beetle wig to Mr. Prencipe.

Judy Caggiano wills Denny DeAngelo the key to the stock room so he can keep the "homefires burning."

Sharon Carns wills to any majorette who can wear it, a huge majorette uniform, and to anyone who wants it, a senior year at R.H.S.

Gloria Carr wills her shorthand transcription classes to anyone who wants a lot of headaches.

Linda Cenni wills her job in the cafeteria to any girl who wants to do 900 dishes a day.

John Chelgreen wills his fun-filled bus rides to Terry Trentine, and his lousy pinochle hands to Doug Glantz.

Francis Connacher wills his seat in homeroom to anyone who wants it, and his looks to Kathy Cretti.

Frank Connacher wills to Bernadette Brenna all the luck in her senior year and to Carol Cristini, one giant stick of bubble gum.

Kenneth Cook wills to Sam Hargrave, Mike and Art Nappe, and Buddy Roof all his luck in finding cops.

Joseph Corey wills his great ability in wrestling to Buddy Roof and his great charm to Denny DeAngelo.

Sue Curci wills a year's supply of tuna fish sandwiches to Miss Dean in exchange for her bench warmer; a pair of scissors, needle and thread to Mrs. Busija; and the editorship of "The Elker" to Donna Dobson and all the fun and work that goes with it.

Bob Dahlquist wills his seat in Mrs. Busija's homeroom to anyone who likes to pester teachers and can survive the beating you take; his list of magazine customers to his sister Jean, and his seat in the back of Bus 1 to anyone who likes to have a seat for himself. Also his seat in French II to anyone who is bored.

Paula DeChano wills her seat in Mr. Gilliland's Senior English class to anyone who likes to sing and a piece of paper for an essay to anyone who doesn't.

Gary DeVallance wills Denny DeAngelo John Stubeck's job as a bum when he retires (Denny seems to have every qualification).

Tom Dickinson wills to Denny DeAngelo a carton of Pall Malls and to Ronnie Zamerowski, his garbage can.

Steve Disque wills his ability to talk things over with Mr. Burgeson and Mr. Gilliland to Paul Solomon, he'll need it; his bent locker to Bone Bussolletti, and his homeroom monitor job to anyone who would be interested.

Richard Ditch wills all the left-over sauerkraut from the cafeteria to Mr. Schmelzle, and the inspirational reading to anyone who wants to be inspired.

David Duffee wills his hair to Mr. Stewart.

Judy Ecklund wills her seat in Chemistry class to anyone who wants it for two years and her parking place at Sandy Beach to Sam Luchs and Rob Brian.

Vince Egan wills all the lunches in his locker to the guy who put them there and all his English notes to Miss Dean—hoping she will see his viewpoint (not that it matters anymore)

Mary Lou Eliason wills to Nita Starr her seat in study hall if she thinks she can put up with Mr. Fleming another year, and to Mary Lou Wolff all her senior notes with luck.

Karen Faulk wills her position as head majorette to any girl who can put up with having a male competitor in back of her.

Donna Fernstrom wills to all the Italians the Bird of Paradise to rest in their lasagna and to Kathy Brian, 50,000 gallons of freckle remover.

Tim Finger wills to the Junior Class the right to attempt to follow in the footsteps of the greatest Senior Class.

Mary Lou Foringer wills an alarm clock to all those who take Spanish and aren't fortunate enough to wake up when the bell rings and her seat in English to anyone who can understand Miss Dean.

Gary Gardner wills to Charlie Nearing five pounds of garlic.

Louie Gasbarre wills to Mr. Schmelzle his great ability to make Physics experiments work because he seems to have trouble with them and to John Manno, his football locker and lots of luck next year.

George Gausman wills to Mr. Schmelzle a year's supply of food coloring, and his ability in Trig. class to anyone who wants to try, try again.

Sherry Geist wills Bookkeeping II class to anyone who wants it and her seat in transcription to anyone who thinks he can get a few points from the class.

Linda Gonzales wills a book of matches to Paul VanAken for the big draft card burn on June 8th.

Fritz Greiner, of unsound mind and body, wills a 10 pound box of snuff to Roy Robertson.

Jon Gulnac wills his musical talent to Mr. Fleming, his keys to the car and his cello to Denny DeAngelo, because of Denny's fondness of big things.

Ray Hartlnad wills good luck to all the teachers at R.H.S., because there are plenty more Hartlands on the way up; and his seat on the bench in football to anyone who likes to feel like a punching bag in practice for four years.

Pam Havens wills her little brother to anyone who thinks he can stand him.

Glenda Himes wills to her brother, Dale, her ability to take a trip to Johnsonburg and get a three-day vacation for it.

Ken Hinton wills to Mr. Marzzacco a book on how to do 150 jumping jacks without jumping, and his seat on the bus to Francis Santiso and Terry Titchner.

John Hodgson wills his position in the Rowdy Bunch to Sam Hargrave.

Charles Hoffman wills his Physics grades to anyone who wants to fail Physics and all the fun he had in Mr. Marzzacco's gym class to anyone who is lucky enough to have him.

Gary Holtz wills a passing grade in shop to Dan Pierce.

Delores Horner wills Physics class to anyone who is dumb enough to take it.

Darrel Huckabone wills his ability to dig holes to anyone going to Viet Nam.

Tom Hyatt wills to Steve Carver all the troubles he had with his car, in hopes that Steve takes care of his horse and to Zane Fulmer, his seat on the bus if he has the guts to take it.

Janelle Jack wills all the fun she had in St. Marys to any junior girl who gets bored Saturday nights in Ridgway.

Becky Johnson wills her ringos to her sister and all her Swedish prestige to Mary Swanson and Ruthie Carlson.

Charlotte Johnson wills what little art talent she has to any future art student who hasn't any and the joys of being a senior to those juniors who can take them good-naturedly.

Dennis Johnson wills to his smaller sister Debby the best of luck in the rest of her school years at R.H.S.

Linda Johnson wills Physics class to anybody who is sap enough to think they can get through it with a passing grade; her T.L. nickel to Barb Gallup (if she finds it), and her great talent to her sister, Sally (she needs it).

Steve Johnson wills to Jim Tully the ability to dodge Mr. Stewart when his hair begins to grow down over his ears.

Jon Johnston wills all his high moral virtues to the younger generation of West End, mainly Steve Healy.

Regina Jones wills her seat in Trig. Class to any Junior who likes to be confused and likes to fail.

Pat Kenrick wills her ability to speak proper English to Miss Dean; her ability to be late for U. S. History 180 times to Gail D.; and her cheerleading ability to K.B. (she needs it).

Irene Leahy wills to Kathy Brian her hospital uniforms and the fun that goes with them, and her guns to Mr. Northey to handle future relatives.

Tom Leary wills his seat in Miss Dean's English class to whoever wants to write on Miss Dean's shoebox and have loads of fun bothering her; and his nickname to anyone who thinks they can have as much fun with it as he did.

Jacque Lockwood wills to her sister, Jeanne, the first period gym class so she can have the experience of taking a shower with her sneaks on while still sleeping.

Ellen Logue wills to Cathy Forbes all of Eddie's letters and to Sue Evers, all the good times in her senior year which she did not have the opportunity to enjoy.

Dena Loncoske wills to Miss Dean her sanity, her rollers, and a big plate of lasagna; to Denny Hoffman her seat in Mr. Fleming's office; and to Mr. Schmelzle, the luck of the Irish.

Carol Luce wills English classes to anyone who doesn't like to do anything and all the fun she had in her senior year to her sister Cheryl.

Regina Luce wills to her sister Cheryl her place in Colorguards and to all future seniors, all the fun she had in her senior year.

Joe Luchs wills his front seat in Miss Dean's class to any Junior who likes the teacher but hates the subject.

Sue Lundsten wills to any Junior who will have Miss Dean for Senior English the privilege of being her very best friend.

Kay Magnuson wills to any lucky senior who has English 4th period the privilege of having Miss Dean lecture to the tune of the growling in your stomach, and to Miss Dean, a "hissing blue" punch bowl.

Linda Malone wills the ability to write essays to anyone who won't sing in English class.

Margaret Mann wills her ability to write the wrong kind of notes to anyone who wants to be well-known and her brother Frank to Frances O'Connell, so she won't have to dream any more.

James Marshall wills all his good luck to anyone who wants it.

Marcia Mascioni wills her seat in Miss Dean's English Class to any Junior who is unlucky enough to get it.

Gene Miles wills his position in the Rowdy Bunch to Zane Fullmer, if he can handle it.

Dennis Mitcheltre wills Larry Shreffler nothing; and his job at the Strand Theater he leaves to anyone who wants to give up all of his spare time. He wills Ted and Duane Bullers all the fun he had at R.H.S.

Catherine Moore wills her ability not to act to anyone who takes dramatics.

Charles Murphy wills to Keith Perryman one bag of tarts and his seat in Mrs. Fay's 3rd period study hall to anyone who wants to talk and get away with it.

Kris Myers wills Wally Lehman her driver's license.

Tom Neureiter wills to Cheryl Luce his seat in Trig. Class since she has so much fun with Algebra; and to his brother George, the so-called "best years of his life" in high school.

Dave Newell wills to Mr. Gilliland a special parking spot at North Broad Street and Allenhurst Avenue and his 5th period gym class to future seniors of West End.

Mike O'Neill wills to Ed Donachy his place at the Old Tyme Bakery and to Vickie Clifford, his place in Economics class.

Rosalyn Park wills her schedule to Barb Caggese if she can put up with Mrs. L. three periods a day, five days a week.

Harry Peterson doesn't will anything to anybody except his seat in Sales class and nobody would want it any way.

Sue Peterson wills her secret for having fun on the players' bus to Barb DeChano.

Georgia Piccirillo wills to any junior intending to take Speech a half year's supply of frustration; to Bill McCloskey, the last place in line of Mr. Abplanalp's nickel bus; and to Claudia Newell, her seat in Physics, if she enjoys being lost in space.

Marinell Rhines wills to Gay Stewart her ability to fail tests without even trying.

Harry Richards wills all the Juvenile delinquents in this school to Mr. Stewart and all the trouble that goes with them.

Bill Riccadonna wills to Jim Facchine a bundle of hay for the chickens, his seat on the bus, and a rowdy Senior year.

Janet Ritter wills a year's supply of H-B cough drops to Miss Dean so that she never runs out and all the great times on players' buses to Bev Andrews.

Nancy Ruth wills her seat on her bus to anybody who is stupid enough to want it.

Ed Secor wills his truck to anybody who can make it go, his bridge-playing hand to Kirk Templeton, and his seat in POD to anybody who likes to sleep.

Benny Serafini wills his seat in art class to anyone who thinks they can fill it; his talent to pick out the best girls in school and out; his talent to draw to anyone who likes to make a life of it; and he wills anything to anyone who thinks they need it.

Lois Serafini wills Carol Morelli her ability to get into lots of trouble in all classes and her "sweaty" gym clothes.

Mark Sharrow wills his seat and all the trouble he had in Short-hand class to his sister Jean.

Don Sherwood wills his seat in the bus behind Fred Austin if you can put up with Fred's complaining to Steve Carver, and his place in Pre-vocational class to anyone who wants to get hit with flying wrenches.

Linda Sherwood wills some of her German ancestry to Ronnie Zamoski so he can get through his senior year without disgrace; a life time pass to summer camp to Billy Johnson; and her gray hairs to Brenda Mrofchinski and Peggy Moore who caused them.

Robert Shick wills his position of the wrestling team to anyone who likes to live down in the "boondocks" and some of his weight to Buddy Roof.

Walt Shield wills to Tom Grumbley his P.A. announcing job along with all the troubles that go with it; to anybody who wants it, his boring seat in French class.

Gary Shrefler wills his sneakers and soap to any junior who has school spirit and is willing to pay for it; and to Mike Nappe, his two votes in the Rowdy Bunch.

Pat Stanley wills to Barb Caggese her ability to make things up on the spur of the moment; to John Rosetti her brains (he needs them); and her great math grades to her sister Kathy.

Linda Supon wills her seat on the bus to Rosann Wolff and the Maroonews to Barb Caggese with a wish for good luck because she'll need it.

Senior Class Prophecy

By 1984 Communism had taken control of the world. The loyal members of the class of RHS 1966 committed suicide because: they'd rather be dead than red.

By 1976, the members of the class of Ridgway High School, 1966 had drifted far from their beloved home. Many in fact had drifted across the Atlantic Ocean to England, Germany, and other European countries as well as the death ridden, battle scourged, and blood-spattered battle fields of Viet Nam (the "cold" war was still in progress). Because of the extreme distances each class member would have to travel, no class reunion was planned to celebrate our past ten years of free and easy living. However, in the spring of 1976, the few of our class who had remained in or around Ridgway received invitations to attend the annual Shakespearian Festival at Stratford-on-Avon, England. Our hostess was to be an old friend, Patricia Kenrick, who, by the way, had recently obtained control of the English crown and now shared the throne with Louis Gasbarre of England. How Queen Pat came to her exalted position is quite a story but really irrelevant to our's.

Naturally all who received invitations accepted immediately and within a week we found ourselves in the company of Her Majesty. The queen was accompanied by various members of her colorful court: the court jester, Lee Walsh, amused us with her wit; the magicians, Pam 'Merlin' Havens, and Paul 'Wizard' Van Aken mixed red colored water and chartreuse colored water and made Venus blue before our eyes—miraculous. They were assisted by Linda Gonzalas, and the head court dancer, Georgia Piccirillo, pirouetted and arabesqued for our amusement as we stood in the waiting line before the ticket window at the local Stratford theatre. The lady at the ticket window was recognized to be Cheryl Titchner and we warmly invited her to join our party. Unfortunately she declined.

Once inside the theatre we had a moment to study our programs. The cast of characters was as follows:

Hamlet played by Eric Weisenfluh, King Claudius played by Walter Shields, Queen Gertrude played by Dianne Anderson, Ophelia played by Linda Cenni, Polonius played by Richard Ditch, Guildenstern played by Gary Edward Holtz, Rosencrantz played by Thomas Dickinson, Laertes played by Raymond Hartland, Horatio played by Darryl Huckabone, Fortenbras played by Timothy Finger, Swedish Ally played by Steven Johnson, Clown I played by Francis Connacher, Clown II played by Frank Connacher, Ghost played by Jon Hodgson, Yorick played by John Sykes.

The production staff: Make up—Sue Curci, Set Design—Jackie Lockwood, Linda Johnson, Lighting & Sound—Richard Timm, Director—Catherine Moore.

The actors were all well-suited to their parts; Hamlet was virile and brave except for his tragic flaw, Ophelia was lovely, Claudius was evil and crafty but his wife, Gertrude, was forever faithful, false friends Guildenstern and Rosencrantz, Fortenbras, and Laertes were gallant and cowardly at once, Polonius thought himself witty, Horatio was a friend to the end and the clowns literally "stole the show."

It is needless to say we enjoyed the presentation.

We gratefully bid farewell to the Queen and prepared to leave England for Germany (we had also received an invitation from Mr. Phillip Schmelze who had returned to the fatherland). On route to the airport we passed 'Big Ben' Serafini and guard of Buckingham palace Dave Duffy who substituted the traditional "busby" with his Beatle "bob." We also drove through the depths of Sherwood Forest and were greeted by Linda and her quite "merry men," shouting their motto "We sure would," who after escorted us through the wood.

Our flight to Germany was pleasant, owing to the excellent service of the airline stewardesses, Sharon Carns and Ellen Logue.

Upon our arrival in Germany, we crossed the beautiful Rhine (river) by ferry; our captain Marynell. We soon reached the charming village of Hortonburg and met our host in a local pub known as "The Garden," owned and operated by the Tamburlin cousins Phil and Gary and their partners in "business," Pat Vigilone and Becky Johnson.

During our short stay in "Burg," we met many of our former schoolmates. Gene Miles, Gary Gardner, and Dennis Sicheri, appeared playing "Walk in the Black Forest" on their singing saws. They had entered the wood on wood cutter's expedition and had just returned after 7 years. Rick Weissenfluh, Chuck Yale, and Joe Cory held a wrestling match with the local team of Hortonburg; a group known as the "D" men: Steve Disque, Gary DeVallance, and "Dill" Tully.

Entertainment was provided at "The Garden" by the "Kegs" (formally known as the "Rogues"): Jon Johnston, John Ciarni, and Rick Bussoletti who played the rousing and famous "Beer Barrel Polka." For our further enjoyment, a special guest—Bob Shick who sang "Feed the Birds" (twopence a bag).

Later, refreshments were provided: sauerkraut and weiners prepared by Carolyn Yorns, pretzels and potato chips by Chris Berger, "wise" girl that she is, Mike O'Neil added a touch of Italy with his homemade pizza, and Linda Sapon cheered us further with her superb "Happy Soup" (she always made 100%).

We hated to leave such pleasant surroundings but soon decided to continue our journey. Since we were "in the neighborhood" we decided to fly to Viet Nam for the U.S.O. show for the troops. We found that we arrived at the same time as others from America, the President of the U.S. Kenneth Simon, members of his cabinet; Darkis Matson, Secretary of International Affairs and Judy Caggiano, Secretary of Foreign Relations; Linda Malone and Loraine Thomas, officers of the Peace Corps.

The U.S.O. show began with a stimulating cheer by Janet Ritter, Sue Peterson, and Pat Stanley. The show starred Darla Hoffman and Sue Lundsten as its "leading ladies" and they helped to improve the spirits of the men immensely. Bill Riccadona, Ed Secor, and Harry Richards, three GI's who we knew in particular were inspired by the efforts of the U.S.O. and although they had been completely discouraged by the war they were now determined to make a fresh start on their campaign for peace. Other familiar faces seen at the U.S.O. show were Ken Hinton, Stan Bauer, Bob Burfield, Ken Tutton and Bob Dahlquist. The Navy was represented by Don Sherwood, Joe Luchs, Carol Luce and John Chelgreen.

General Vince Egan was found planning the route to be taken by the guerilla fighters, Fritz Greiner, Tom Neuriter, and Tom Hyatt. These fearless men had been well trained by Mary Lou Forringer and Gina Luce.

Lover of beautiful women that he was, General Egan was constantly followed by lovely girls, most of them members of the Army Nurse Corps. Some we noticed were Gina Johes, Delores Horner, Rita Anderson and Irene Leahy. X-Ray technician, James Marshall, tagged along.

During our stay in Viet Nam we visited the PX store and were helped to find "trinkets to take home" by Nancy Ruth. Adjoining the PX store was the army post office where we found secretary Jan Jack busily answering fan letters to General Egan from the Viet Cong.

Before leaving Viet Nam we stopped at the Hanoi Hotel for Happy Honeymooners, extremely popular with newlyweds because of its scenic location. Among the guests were some familiar names: Kathy Anderson, Judie Brush, Charlotte Johnson, Sherry Giest, Carol Bjorkquist, Delores Wiese and Darlene Wolf. They were all there with their husbands and we were glad to see they had fulfilled their ambitions of their high school days. Other couples staying at the hotel were Tom Wolf and the former Judy Eckland and Mark Sharrow and the former Judy Wamsley. The only unattached person at the hotel was Larry Blose, who was social director and head of the Green Berets.

At last we decided to return to the U.S. We were led to the boat by a military parade, led by Karel Faulk as head majorette and Phyl Brown as the leader of the motor cycle brigade. However, as we were boarding our luxury liner, we were asked for a donation to pay for the officer's party of the night before. Naturally everyone was glad to help and even Fred Beyer chipped in.

We had been at sea 4 days when someone realized that Linda Assalone was no longer with us. There was nothing we could do but decided she must have missed the boat. The same day we received a telegram informing us that Kay Magnuson, a former classmate, had died of a heart attack while trying to commit suicide in honor of Florence Nightingale's birthday. We were heart broken. Kris Meyers became so emotional she fell over the boat rail and drowned. Thank heaven. (We were low on food)

Soon we found ourselves in New York Harbor and decided to spend a few days in this exciting city before going home.

During our stay in New York we met Jon Gulnac, famous manager of the Harlem Ghouls Rotters; international playboys, Chuck Hoffman and Tom Leary accompanied by their lady friends and secretaries Margaret Mann and Mary Lou Eliason; and John Zamoski, the garbage man of New York City. We also went to see the stock car races; the most well known drivers (to us anyway) were Marcia Mascioni, Betty Jean Swanson, and Rusty Cook.

Our final day in New York City was spent touring the Beauty Salon and Modeling Agency of Maureen Broderick. Carol Armanini, Nancy Anderson, and Shirley Aumen were Maureen's chief beauticians. Secretaries and business managers were Gloria Carr, Janine Bennett, Lois Serafini, Roz Parks and Cindy Thompson. A special thrill was experienced when we were permitted to watch the photographing of the eyes of fashion models Patty Anderson and Paula DeChano for a "Maybelline" commercial.

Our stay away from home had nearly ended. We had seen many of our old and dear friends. Those who we hadn't met recently were missed and well remembered. George Gausman was still studying his trig. at RHS, Karl Anderson and Denny Hohnson jointly owned a farm in the hills of Elk County. We were informed that they couldn't attend by their secretary, Glenda Himes. James Bullers was raising cows on his adir farm in Portland Mills. Dave Vigilone and Bill Verostek remained in Ridgway to defend Hydes Hill. Chuck Murphy had to attend a KuKlux Klan meeting in Alabama.

We boarded our plane to take us back to Ridgway and as we flew over Brooklyn Bridge we waved goodbye to Donna Fernstrom as she jumped. Sad; but we were cheered by the knowledge that Roy Bennett had finally learned to "cope" with his problems even though Donna hadn't.

We landed in Ridgway, opened the plane door and stepped out. Unfortunately there were no steps, which brings us to our morale: Look before you leap.
